ON THE COVER: Larry Owings, University of Washington junior, became the talk of the collegiate wrestling world last March when he upset Iowa's famed Dan Gable, 13-11, in the 142-pound finals of the National Collegiate Championships. It was Gable's first loss in 182 matches. The feat earned Owings the meet's Outstanding Wrestler honor and buoyed his hopes for a championship in the 1972 Olympics—his goal. The Canby, Ore., matman was a winner as high as the 167-pound class and won the Pacific-Eight 158-pound title. He entered the National Collegiate Championships with a 29-1 record and trained down to 142 for the meet because he believes that's his best wrestling weight.

NATIONAL PREVIEW-REVIEW

Oklahoma State, Paced By 3 Returning Titlists, Set To Regain Throne In '71

By BOB DELLINGER

Sports Editor, The Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times

There's a new sheriff in college wrestling's boom town.

Larry Owings, University of Washington junior, is the top draw now, but in the tradition of the Old West, he's also the target for every gun-slinger within range of his 142 pounds.

Owings earned his star by cutting down Dan Gable of Iowa State in the 1970 finals, winning a 13-11 duel in perhaps the most dramatic shootout in wrestling history.

Owings will not feel all the glaring heat of Gable's flawless streak of 100 varsity victories, having been beaten in the NCAA tournament as a freshman and by two-time champion Mike Grant of Oklahoma during a 34-1 sophomore season. But "high noon" will come often enough.

Despite Owings' leadership and Washington's continuing surge toward national acclaim, the Huskies are not yet ready to challenge the age-old dominance of the Midlands for the national team championship.

Oklahoma State is no "new sheriff"—the Cowboys haven't worn the badge for a couple of seasons. But they're used to being on the spot. They've ruled collegiate mats 26 times in 40 years and must go into the 1971 season as odds-on favorites to regain their place in the sun.

No other contender can match the foundation on which second-year coach Tom Chesbro hopes to build his first national team monarchy.

The Cowboys welcome back 75 of their fourth-place 79 points from the 1970 tournament, including three national champions and a runnerup, and insert one of the year's most promising newcomers into the lineup.

Returning for their senior seasons are the Keller twins, Dwayne and Darrell, champions at 126 and 134; Geoff Baum, the 190-pound king; and Ray Stapp, silver medalist at 118.

Strengthening the Stapp-Zap-Zap salvo in the lower weights will be Japanese national champion Yoshiro Fujita, a transfer student from Hachinohe who will have two years of eligibility. His past accomplishments include a victory over Olympic champion

Bob Dellinger, sports editor of The Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times, has more than 20 years' experience as a wrestling writer and has received national and international awards for his contribution to the sport.

Dellinger was the first winner of the Amateur Wrestling News writer-of-the-year award in 1959 and after he won it again the next two years, the trophy was retired and the new one named after him.

The University of Kansas graduate was introduced to wrestling as a rookie sports writer at Ponca City, Okla.

He joined the Oklahoman & Times in 1952 and covered his first NCAA meet in 1954.

Yojiro Uetake, a feat no United States wrestler could manage during Uetake's NCAA reign of 1964-65-66 for O-State. Best bet is that Fujita will move in at 126 pounds, with the Kellers each going up a weight to 134 and 142.

That would give the Cowboys a "front four" weighing about half that of a football team, but capable of wreaking far more havoc among the opposition.

Half a team won't win many national championships, but the Cowboys aren't exactly destitute at the remaining weights. Only two seniors are gone from the young 1970 squad and there are promising newcomers to bolster an attack which should benefit from experience.

Despite Oklahoma State's awesome credentials, there's no indication the NCAA should have the big trophy engraved early. Not as long as there are dangerous rivals such as Iowa State and Oklahoma within the Cowboys' own Big Eight Conference, plus powerful challengers like Michigan State and Oregon State and a fleet of darkhorse candidates elsewhere.

Iowa State suffered overwhelming losses from its championship array of 1970, including all three national titlists and Gable, the runnerup after two previous crowns.

But the Cyclones can't be counted out, despite the graduation of Gable, 158-pound champion Dave Martin and 167-pound double winner Jason Smith, and the departure from school of two-time 177-pound titlist Chuck Jean.

While Iowa State was exploiting the Gable Era with a second-place finish in 1968, a record 104 points a year later and a 99-point repeat championship last spring, coach Harold Nichols was developing a host of talented youngsters.

Returnees are headed by a junior trio of Phil Parker, third at 134; Ben Peterson, fourth at 190; and Carl Adams, Big Eight champion at 150 with a victory over Grant of Oklahoma.

Lesser known, but with valuable varsity experience, are 118-pound seniors Steve Lampe, sixth in 1969, and Norm Wilkerson; 158-pound senior Dave Bock and 265-pound sophomore Geary Murdock, plus sophs Lee Johnson, Doug Lunt, Keith Abens and Steve Clark.

With its two-year reign, Iowa State became the only school other than Oklahoma State and Oklahoma to win back-to-back team titles and the Cyclones will be no soft touch in quest of No. 3.

Oklahoma State's Cowboys hold the record with seven in a row in 1937-46, spanning the World War II hiatus.

Perhaps the strongest challenge to Big Eight supremacy will come from Michigan State, the 1967 champion and last year's runnerup. The Spartans return 49 of 84 tournament points, including national champion Greg Johnson and three fourth-place medalists.

Johnson, a 118-pound junior, posted a 19-1 record after joining the lineup late because of injury, and avenged that loss with a judges' decision over Stapp of O-State in the national finals.

Another key returnee and a definite title threat is sophomore Tom Milkovich, fourth at 134 after losing in the semifinals to Darrell Keller of O-State on a last-second takedown. Gerald Malacek, 177, and heavyweight Vic Mittelberg also bring back fourth-place medals.

The Spartans of coach Grady Peninger lose third-place medalists Keith

TENSE SITUATION—Larry Owings of Washington (top) tries desperately to turn Mike Grant of Oklahoma, but Sooner ace resisted successfully and went on to score a 7-5 dual meet decision. Both won NCAA championships—Grant at 150 pounds and Owings at 142 pounds. (Copyright, 1970, The Oklahoma Publishing Co.)

Lowrance, Pat Karslake and Jack Zindel and two other seasoned performers, Gary Bissell and Ron Ouellet, but welcome back two 1969 stars who were sidelined by injuries—130-pound Big Ten runnerup Mike Ellis and 152-pound conference champion John Abajace—plus enough other lettermen to restore fine team balance.

Only once in 40 tournaments has the team title escaped the Midlands, when Penn State won 18 years ago, but the Paul Bunyan of the Pacific Northwest—Oregon State—might change that.

Impressive third-place finishes the past two years have established the Beavers as worthy contenders. The departure of two-time heavyweight champion Jess Lewis may delay Oregon State's strongest threat another season, but coach Dale Thomas' crew must be watched.

Gone with Lewis are two more medalists, third place Kim Snider at 158 and fifth place Jim Vandehey at 167. But three others give the Beavers a nucleus on which to build—177 runnerup Jim Crumley; 126 third-place Roger Weigel, who carried Dwayne Keller of O-State into overtime in the semifinals; and 150 fourth-place Bob Tomasovic.

With 40 tournament points returning, Oregon State will have exceptional balance and depth to back its front-line power.

The Beavers have two promising little men in sophomores Dave Kalams and Mike A. Jones and a host of youngsters to plug the middle, including coach Thomas' son, Ken, and sophomore Mike R. Jones, at 158 and 167.

To replace Lewis, Oregon State will have California champion Fred Stewart, last year's backup man, and the four top high school heavyweights from the state of Oregon, all on hand as football prospects.

The four-team Battle of the States may be disrupted by perennial contender Oklahoma, which expects to begin reaping dividends from its rebuilding program.

The Sooners lose Grant, who kept alive the school's streak of 17 years with a national champion, but return eight regulars including three medalists—senior Mike Cachero, third at 118; and juniors Bill Beakley, fifth at 142, and Tom Corbin, sixth at 177.

The addition of Les Seat, a national junior college champion, will strengthen the lower weights, but Oklahoma's return to title contention will hinge on three other expected returnees—Stan Keeley (126), runner-up in 1969 who dropped out of school last year; Joe Boone (142), who quit the team at midterm with an 8-1 record; and Larry Laush (158), 1969 Big Eight champion who fell on the scholastic shoals at midyear.

So Oklahoma can be labeled a darkhorse, pending developments, but at worst coach Tommy Evans' Sooners should rank high in the top ten.

Within shooting distance of the five prime contenders will gallop a posse of challengers, some of them relative newcomers to national prominence, like Washington, Ohio University and Toledo; some of them familiar faces among the elite, like Iowa, Michigan, Navy and Penn State; and some of them on the comeback trail, like Pittsburgh and Lehigh.

Contesting Michigan State's bid for a sixth straight Big Ten title will be Iowa, where Dave McCuskey enters his 40th year of coaching, and Michigan where Rick Bay takes the reins after the 45-year tenure of Cliff Keen.

Iowa loses six of 10 regulars including runnersup Joel Carstensen at 134 and Phil Henning at 167, but again will have good balance headed by fifth-place Paul Zander, 190-pound junior.

Michigan has sixth-place Jerry Hoddy back for his senior year at 118, conference champion Tim Cech returning at 126 and four other weights in the hands of veterans. Sixth-place Jesse Rawls is gone at 126.

Navy returns three of its six Eastern champions—juniors Tom Schuler at 118 and Lloyd Keaser at 142 and senior Lew Mason at 126. The Mid-dies, seeking a fourth straight Eastern title, expect to benefit from an unbeaten freshman team.

Penn State also greets three Eastern kingpins, foremost being 150-pound senior Clyde Frantz who placed third in the 1969 nationals. Juniors Andy Matter, 167, and Dave Joyner, heavyweight, also will defend and will be backed by 118-pound junior runnerup Dave Weber and two other regulars.

Pressing for Eastern honors and national acclaim will be a young Pitt squad which outscored both rivals with last year's eighth-place NCAA finish and returns nine of 10 regulars—10 if you count heavyweight Ralph Cindrich, who missed last season with a football injury after placing fourth in the 1969 NCAA.

Returning medalists are Randy Payne, 126-pound runnerup as a freshman, and sixth-place junior 158-pounder Bob Kuhn. The Panthers continue their youth program with bright freshmen John Chatman and Kevin Love joining Eastern runnerup Mark Payne, 142-pound junior, and sophomore standouts Steve Weiss at 118 and Steve Caramanna at 190.

Another Eastern challenger is Lehigh, where new coach Thad Turner greets third-place 177-pounder Steve Shields, along with standouts Herb Campbell (150), Dave Icenhower (134) and Scott Christie (190).

Washington's threat to Oregon State's domination of the Pacific-Eight, where the Beavers have won 14 titles in 15 years, centers on Owings, of course, but the Huskies return nine of 10 regulars including Pac-8 champ Lyle Ballew at 142 and three other conference standouts in Pat McMahon at 134, Hajime Shinjo at 150 and Ken Latimer at 167.

Owings probably will work at three or four different weights during the dual season, then pick his spot for the tournaments.

Another standout from the Pacific Northwest will be independent Portland State, returning 265-pound third-place medalist Wayne Karney, beaten only by Lewis of Oregon State. Marlin Grahn, 15-2 at 158 and bested only by Owings, and Junior Johnson, 13-2 at 167, were ineligible for the 1970 NCAA as junior college transfers but will be ready this time. Only one regular is missing.

Two rising young powers of the Midlands, Ohio U. and Toledo, placed ninth and 11th, respectively, last season and should stage another spirited

"PRETZELIZED"—Bill Beakley of Oklahoma hangs on for dear life as he battles Lyle Ballew of Washington on the way to an 8-5 decision in a dual meet at Norman, Okla. battle in the Mid-American Conference and for national honors, with Kent State an added factor.

Ohio U. loses only one senior and returns national runnerup Bruce Trammell, 158-pound senior, and three conference champions, Rich Panella at 118, Bruce Hosta at 167 and Russ Johnson at 175.

Toledo boasts the nation's No. 2 heavyweight, 245-pound junior Greg Wojciechowski, 20-1, as well as sixth-place Ron Junko, 134-pound senior, and all the rest of last year's lineup.

In all, 35 of last spring's 60 All-Americans return for 1971, including half of the 10 champions, half the runnersup, half the bronze medalists and eight of the fourth-placers.

Brigham Young defends its Western Athletic Conference title against Utah in a battle of two veteran squads; Springfield is favored for its 21st consecutive New England championship; Maryland rates the nod for its 17th straight Atlantic Coast crown with Virginia again the challenger; Louisiana State is the Southeastern choice again over NCAA tourney host Auburn; Idaho State goes for its fifth straight Big Sky title but ranks behind Air Force, Adams State and Northern Colorado in the Mountain Intercollegiate; and Princeton figures to repeat in the Ivy League. Southern Illinois and Indiana State again will rank as respected independents, despite the loss of key performers.

As the tournament moves to a new frontier in 1971, the heart of Dixie, a new district qualifying plan will take effect. Seven district tournaments, plus the College Division meet, will produce 32 entries for each weight, a 320-man field compared to last season's record throng of 394 contestants at Northwestern.

The seven NCAA districts active in wrestling will qualify individuals on a formula weighted to past performance. Five each will come from Districts 2 (East), 4 (Midwest), 5 (Midwest) and 8 (West). Four each will qualify from District 7 (Rocky Mountains) and the College Division nationals and two each from Districts 1 (New England) and 3 (Southeast).

Under consideration by the rules committee is a proposal to enlarge the consolation bracket to lend more perspective to the struggles for third through sixth-place medals.

The district qualifying plan, while making the tournament itself easier to manage next season, is expected to have little if any effect on the top University Division teams.

Such is not the case, however, for Cal Poly (San Luis Obispo), which is expected to capture its fifth College Division championship in six years.

While Cal Poly's dual schedule is one of the toughest in the nation, as befits an established national power, the Mustangs will find it difficult to qualify a representative team through the huge College Division tournament, which drew 381 competitors in 1970.

Cal Poly's stature atop the College Division should be unshaken, however, with the return of seven starters including four of five CD tournament medalists and enough prospects returning from last year's 87-man squad to plug any gaps in the school's bid for another title.

Featured returnees are senior runnersup Lee Torres at 150, John Finch at 158 and Rich Simmons at 177, and third-place Glenn Anderson, 126-pound sophomore. Finch was champion in 1968 and has placed second twice, losing by default in last year's finals on an injury.

Help should come from 325-pound junior college transfer Tim Kopi-tar, sophomore 134-pounder Larry Morgan and 177-pound transfer John Hall. Coach Vaughan Hitchcock must find replacements for 118-pound CD champion Terry Hall and 1969 runnerup Rick Arnold.

Throughout the College Division, prospects are bright, particularly in two conferences which pack much of the power.

Northern Iowa, South Dakota State and Mankato State, who placed 2-4-5 in last year's team race, are bunched in the North Central Conference with another contender, tourney host North Dakota State.

Northern Iowa returns three medalists—Bob Boeck, third at 177; Mike McCready, third at heavyweight; and Clint Young, fourth at 158. Mankato has nine of 10 regulars back, including 190-pound runnerup Brian Hage and standouts Gary Franke at 118, Ken Stockdale at 134 and Bob Pomplun at 152.

New York Maritime, third last year, returns champion Don Dixon at 158 and fourth-place Dan Weck at 150 and John Reid at 177. Things are looking up at Illinois State, with champion Eric Bates at 167; at Seattle Pacific, where 167-pounder Ken Hagen returns with a 31-4 record including three losses after he was injured; and at Central Michigan, where returnees include 26-bout winners Tom Minkel at 150, third in the CD and fifth in the UD, and Larry Hulbert, third in the CD at 142.

Another powerful college conference is the Pennsylvania Collegiate. Defending champion Lock Haven may be overrun by Slippery Rock, which features 150-pound junior Stan Dziedic, College Division champion who placed third in the NCAA Finals, and two other college medalists; Bloomsburg and East Stroudsburg, returning veteran squads; and up-and-coming Clarion, loaded with young lettermen.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE CHAMPIONSHIPS

Iowa State's Victory Party Is Marred By Defeat Of Its Unbeaten Dan Gable

By RUSS SMITH

Sports Editor, The Waterloo (Ia.) Daily Courier

Iowa State University's second straight National Collegiate tournament championship marked the Cyclones for a special niche in college wrestling annals, but the 1970 tournament at Northwestern University will be remembered chiefly for the second place finish the Iowa State team sustained at 142 pounds.

Four 1969 champions repeated in 1970—two of them from Iowa State—and one reclaimed the crown he had won previously in 1968. But two champions didn't defend their crowns successfully and one of those losses followed one of the most nerve-tingling and highly publicized matches in collegiate wrestling history.

Sophomore Larry Owings of the University of Washington and senior Dan Gable of Iowa State pinned their way to the 142-pound finals.

Gable had been there before. He won the title at 130 pounds as a sophomore at Penn State University in 1968. He won the championship match by a fall at 137 pounds in 1969 at Provo, Utah's Brigham Young University. Going into the finals in March of 1970, Gable had wrestled 33 times during the season and had 31 falls and two decisions. He had five falls in an elapsed time of 22:08 in the national tournament.

He had not lost in 101 college matches, 74 of which ended in falls. He'd won three straight high school championships in the Hawkeye State. His overall record in the seven seasons since he became eligible for the West Waterloo High School varsity squad as a sophomore had been 181 victories, 113 pins, no losses and no draws.

A former basketball and baseball coach, Russ Smith decided to become a sports writer in 1949 when he joined the staff of the Daily Courier at Waterloo, Iowa, a hotbed of amateur wrestling and the home of Dan Gable, one of the sport's all-time greats.

Hall of Fame.

Smith, a graduate of Northern Iowa University, became sports editor of the Courier in 1966.

Smith has covered all but one National Collegiate Wrestling Championships since 1958 and in 1963 was named the winner of the first Bob Dellinger Award as Amateur Wrestling Writer of the Year. He also is a member of the Iowa High School Wrestling Coaches and Officials

He had met and defeated Owings, 13-4, in an international freestyle match in the 1968 Olympic try-outs in Ames, Iowa, where Gable was a university sophomore. Owings, then out of Hubbard, Oregon, was a high school senior.

Gable was the wrestling man of the year, proclaimed such by The Amateur Wrestling News the week-end before the National tournament started this year. He was the object of the casual fan and the darling of the mat-addict; in constant demand as an interview subject for newspaper, radio and television representatives. But if Owings was overlooked previously, it was an error which has now been duly rectified. He also had 33 victories going into the finals, and he'd won for his team as high as 167 pounds.

He was the Pacific Eight Conference champion at 158 pounds and Gable the Big Eight winner at 142. Owings was the defending United States Wrestling Federation freestyle champion while Gable, in the spring of 1969, won the National Amateur Athletic Union freestyle title. Neither entered the other meet that spring.

The seeding committee saw Owings coming, however, and made him the No. 2 seed behind Gable at 142 pounds. The difference: Owings had suffered a 7-5 loss to repeating national champion Mike Grant of Oklahoma in a dual meet match and Gable had defeated Grant 9-4. Both were rousers on the Sooners' mat. They were the only top two seeds to clash in the finals in any weight in the 1970 meet.

Owings quickly vindicated his selection by winning four straight falls in 16:13 to reach the finals. It was as though he couldn't wait to make good on his promise to coach Jim Smith and the Washington fans that he was going to Evanston to beat Dan Gable.

He needed to pin Dan to win the most falls in least aggregate time trophy that Gable had won in 1969. Any other outcome and Gable would win that prize again. Owings had to settle for the outstanding wrestler award, a unanimous selection of the voting officials after his 13-11 victory over Gable. Dan had won that accolade in 1969.

Gable got the first takedown, but found himself behind 7-2 midway in the second period. Gable got an 8-8 tie with a reversal just 16 seconds into the third period and he had enough riding time advantage to break the tie.

Owings escaped with 1:03 left in the match to take a nominal 9-8 lead. Gable still could have won on time advantage. But Owings shot for the legs, took Dan down on his back and the four points put him ahead 13-8. Gable escaped with 17 seconds to go, but never came close to a takedown. He added a final two points for time advantage.

It ruined the victory celebration for his teammates even though the club coached by Dr. Harold Nichols had just become the first in history to keep an Oklahoma team—either Oklahoma State or Oklahoma—off the top for two years in a row. The Cyclones almost did it in 1933 when they tied Oklahoma State for the title after Indiana had won in 1932.

Iowa State's champions were senior Jason Smith and junior Chuck Jean, the second in succession for each at 167 and 177 pounds, respectively, and senior Dave Martin, who moved up from second in 1969 at 160 pounds to first at 158.

Michigan State, which won the crown three years previously, finished second; Oregon State was third and Oklahoma State, although it matched the Cyclones' three individual champions, was fourth.

The University of Iowa moved up from seventh to fifth and the University of Oklahoma, with only Grant as an individual winner, slipped from second to sixth.

The Cowboys' three champions included a pair of twins, Dwayne Keller, winner and most outstanding wrestler in 1968, copped the title at 126 pounds and his twin brother, Darrell, won at 134.

Geoffrey Baum won for the Cowboys at 190 pounds over unseeded Bob Rust of Syracuse while top-seeded Ben Peterson of Iowa State finished fourth.

The heavyweight title capped an undefeated, untied year for Oregon State's Jess Lewis, who also won it last year.

After the 142-pound match, most anything was anti-climactic, but the 8,500 or so persons who jammed McGaw Hall saw three other close bouts.

Martin had to ride Ohio University's Bruce Trammell desperately for the final 40 seconds to preserve his 5-4 victory; Smith relied on a 2:06-:38 time advantage to win his title, 8-7, over Phil Henning of Iowa and Jean won 8-6 over Oregon State sophomore Jim Crumley on two points for a 6:06-1:19 time advantage.

All of the points in Grant's 6-1 victory over Bob Ferraro of Indiana State were scored in the third period, making that match closer than the score would indicate. And a fired-up Ferraro came back two weeks later to pin Grant in the East-West all-star duel at Ames.

Dwayne Keller was an 8-0 victor over Randy Payne of Pittsburgh while Darrell defeated Joel Carstensen of Iowa, 12-2.

Baum won, 9-1, over Rust and Lewis defeated Greg Wojciechowski of Toledo, 11-2.

Crowds for the six sessions totaled around 30,000 and both the crowds and the tournament entry list were reduced by a heavy snowstorm and traffic tieup the night preceding opening day. The total entry was 362.

COLLEGE DIVISION CHAMPIONSHIPS

Cal Poly's Mustangs Remain Untamed, Galloping To Third Straight Crown

By BILL NICHOLS

Sports Writer, The Cleveland Plain Dealer

California Poly of San Luis Obispo confirmed what everyone else suspected—it's the class of the College Division wrestling world.

The powerful Mustangs put on an awesome display at Ashland, Ohio last March to capture an unprecedented third straight National College Division crown and fourth in five years of the eight-year tournament.

The talent-rich Mustangs outdistanced a record field of 86 teams with 82 points. Northern Iowa moved up to second with 58 points from its third place finish in the 1969 meet.

New York Maritime earned 1970 show honors with 48 points, followed by South Dakota State, 43; Mankato State, 41; Central Michigan, 40; Western Colorado State, 38; Springfield, 35; Wilkes, 34, and rounding out the top 10 was Northern Michigan with 32. Colorado State College, the 1969 runnerup, slipped to 17th in the 1970 championships.

Coach Vaughan Hitchcock's victorious Mustangs varied their tactics somewhat in winning the title. Only Terry Hall won a championship for Cal Poly but three runnersup contributed valuable points to the tally.

Hall won his second consecutive 118-pound crown and went on to capture the Outstanding Wrestler Award.

Hall bested Greg Schmidt of South Dakota State, 12-8, in the final match of his class. Schmidt wound up in third place in the 1969 meet. Hall was the lone repeat champion of the tournament.

The biggest surprise of the tourney came in the powerful 126-pound class. All six 1969 place winners returned, but only Mike Tello of Northern Michigan earned points this time. He took a fourth place medal for the second straight year.

Larry Wagner of Colorado State defeated John Morfia of Wilkes College, 8-4, to gain the 126-pound crown.

John Walter of Oswego State, the defending champion at 126, lasted until the quarterfinals when he was upset by Ed Kochachii of C. W. Post, 12-8.

Marv Reiland from Northern Iowa, who was favored to win the 134-

Bill Nichols' main beat on Dealer, a paper he joined five years ago after working as a public relations man for the American Greetings Corp. in Cleveland. His other assignments for the P-D have included tennis, golf, harness racing and pro basketball.

Unlike most newspapermen who major in journalism in college, Nichols' main studies at alma mater Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, O., were business administration and speech.

The 40-year old Cleveland is a four-year Navy veteran with service duty in California and Japan. He is married and has two children.

pound title off his runnerup showing in 1969, had to settle for fourth place. Stan Zeamer of Northwest Missouri's Bearcats took top honors when he defeated Robert Sinclair of Springfield College in the deciding showdown, 8-2.

Lester Bright of Old Dominion earned 142-pound laurels with an 11-8 decision over Mankato State's Dale Richter.

Top 150-pounder was Slippery Rock's Stan Dziedzic, who easily turned back Leandro Torres of Cal Poly, 9-1.

Cal Poly already had the title wrapped up when the 158-pound match between the Mustangs' John Finch and Don Dixon of New York Maritime took center stage. But this bout provided the Californians with this lone disappointment of the entire tournament.

Finch, the 1969 runnerup at 150 pounds, was heavily favored in the duel and was leading, 1-0, after the first period. However, midway in the middle session he sustained a shoulder separation and Dixon was awarded the first place prize through default.

The audience appreciated Finch's game but losing effort, applauding long and loud at the presentation ceremonies when he received his runnerup medal with his arm in a sling.

Eric Bates of Illinois State came from behind in the 167-pound title scrap to pull off a 5-4 decision over Northern Iowa's Vince Bollock, who moved up from sixth place in 1969.

South Dakota's Don Trapp captured the 177-pound accolades with a 7-5 triumph over Cal Poly's Rich Simmons.

In the 190-pound division, Regan Beers of Brockport State nipped Mankato State's Brian Hage, 3-2.

The curtain came down on the 1970 championships when 260-pound Richard Schumacher of East Stroudsburg easily handled Ron Fandrick of Northern Michigan, 8-2, in the heavyweight finale.

After all records were tabulated it was found that only 11 returning placers finished in the top six of each weight class in the tourney.

Winning the Most Falls Award was Dan Weck of New York Maritime with four pins in 10:29. He placed fourth in the 150-pound class.

The top four finishers of each event qualified for the NCAA University Division tourney. However, none was successful in winning a championship at the big meet in Evanston, Ill.

Capturing the NCAA crown climaxed a banner year for the Cal Poly grapplers. Previous to the championships the Mustangs won their eighth straight California conference crown. And they notched seven shutouts in dual action, more than they compiled in their four previous seasons.

Only four mid-season dual defeats marred Cal Poly's otherwise perfect season. The first of these setbacks snapped a dual winning string that had reached 74 matches for the champs.

Cal Poly was the first California school to win a national wrestling title. Now the Mustangs are making a habit of it.

Ashland College has hosted two national championships, the 1969 track event and the 1970 wrestling meet. Cal Poly won both.

The Mustangs wouldn't mind that cross country trip every year if the voyage would always promise such bountiful results.

Helms Foundation Amateur Wrestling Hall Of Fame

The Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame was established by the Helms Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles in 1957 with an original selection of five wrestlers, nine coaches and one contributor.

Since 1957 annual elections to the Hall of Fame have been held. With the announcement of six additions for 1970, the total number to be honored for their outstanding contributions to the sport is now 119, including 53 wrestlers, 48 coaches and 18 contributors.

Elections to the Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame are made by the Helms Hall Board as a result of recommendations made by the Amateur Wrestling Hall of Fame Committee, headed by Jess Hoke of Amateur Wrestling News.

A permanent trophy for amateur wrestling is maintained in Helms Hall and members of the Hall of Fame whose names are inscribed thereon are as follows:
