Wisconsin-Parkside wrestler continues family legacy

PINNING A LEGACY

As Wisconsin-Parkside senior Nick Becker prepares for this year's Division II Wrestling Championships, he has more on his mind than winning a third consecutive national title.

A family legacy also is at stake. Nick is the youngest of four Becker success stories at his school: Brad won the national championship at 157 pounds in 2006; Craig captured a national title at 149 pounds in 2010 and is now an assistant coach at Wisconsin-Parkside; and Kyle wrestled at 165 pounds and was an All-American.

"Wrestling is so emotionally demanding," Nick Becker says. "My brothers have always picked me back up if I had a tough loss and helped me regain my motivation and keep striving."

But even with his brothers' support, one key figure will be missing at the championships this year. Jim Koch, the wrestling coach at Wisconsin-Parkside for 41 years who coached the three older Becker brothers and watched Nick grow up, was killed after he was struck by a car during the Division I Wrestling Championships in St. Louis.

Becker credits Koch for helping him contend with the psychological strains of his sport. "It's just you and yourself when you step on the mat," Becker says. "People can help you prepare, but at the end of the day, you've just got to do it for yourself."

This year, though, Becker says he will be wrestling his senior season for Koch, too.

Carlton Haselrig's feats on the mat earned him a spot in the National Wrestling Hall of Fame.

Carlton Haselrig's road to becoming a professional football player had a twist that allowed him to become the most decorated wrestler in NCAA history.

The Pennsylvania native began his collegiate career as a football player at Lock Haven, but a knee injury before the start of his freshman year prevented him from ever suiting up for a game. During winter break, he decided to transfer to his hometown school and take classes at Pittsburgh-Johnstown, which did not have a football team.

"My original plan was to come home and just go to UPJ and not play sports," Haselrig says. "I figured I would do therapy on my knee, take classes and then maybe transfer somewhere to play football. However, UPJ felt like such a good fit."

With that move, Haselrig set in motion the most prolific career in NCAA wrestling history — one that ended in, of all places, the NFL.

He would finish in third place at the NCAA Division II meet his freshman year in 1986, then go on to win both the Division I and Division II titles in his sophomore, junior and senior seasons, to become the only wrestler in history to win more than four NCAA titles.

"At the time, I definitely didn't understand the magnitude of it," says Haselrig, who was inducted into the National Wrestling Hall of Fame in 2016. "It was no easy task to win even just one, but it makes me happy and proud to look back at what I accomplished."

Before 1990, the Divisions II and III

individual champions earned bids to the Division I championships, allowing Haselrig the chance to win both titles. After Haselrig's run of NCAA titles, the Division I Wrestling Committee voted to rescind the bids to the Division II and III champions. As a result, Haselrig's feat cannot be matched unless the rule is changed again.

"People call it the 'Haselrig Rule,'" Pittsburgh-Johnstown wrestling coach Pat Pecora says. "The Division I coaches felt it was giving Division II and III schools a recruiting advantage because they got to go to both meets. They also didn't like the Division II wrestlers having the opportunity to compete for Division I titles."

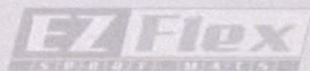

Haselrig had never wrestled for a team before arriving at Pittsburgh-Johnstown. His uncle introduced him to the sport as a child, and he participated in occasional tournaments.

6-time NCAA wrestling champ jumped to NFL having never played a college down

AN UNREPEATABLE FEAT

He stopped wrestling in high school because his school didn't have a team. But in his junior year, a neighboring high school needed a training partner for a standout wrestler, so Haselrig helped out. After seeing his success against one of the state's top wrestlers, Haselrig's high school petitioned the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association to let him compete in wrestling, beginning with the postseason district tournament his senior year. Haselrig went on to win every match, including a state title.

At Pittsburgh-Johnstown, Haselrig finished his career with a record of 143-2-1, including an NCAA-record 122 consecutive matches without a loss. He never lost a match at the NCAA Division I meet, going 15-0 at the heavyweight class in the 1987, 1988 and 1989 tournaments.

"He is the best I ever coached — no doubt about it," says Pecora, who has been at the helm of the Mountain Cat program since 1976. "If he wouldn't have been drafted by the Steelers, I am convinced he would have been an Olympic champion. He is the best I have even seen, especially given the circumstances that he really didn't have that much wrestling background. It's hard for me to imagine how good he could have been."

As amazing as his feat of winning six NCAA wrestling titles was, perhaps even more so was his becoming a professional football player. Even though he had not played football since his senior year of high school, Pecora worked with a friend of his to arrange a pro day for Haselrig to show off his football skills.

"We had four NFL scouts show up," Pecora says. "Every drill they would put him through, they would be amazed, so they would have him do it again. Every time, he would do it even better than the first time. After it was over, three of the teams told me they wouldn't draft him but wanted to sign him to a free agent deal to come to camp. However, the Steelers told me they were willing to draft him with their last pick on draft night."

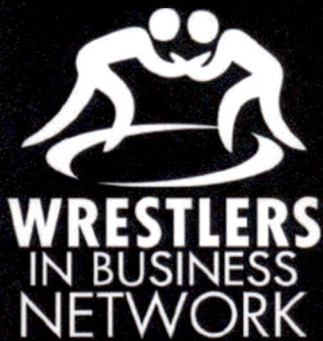

Sure enough, the Pittsburgh Steelers drafted Haselrig with their 12th selection of the 1989 draft. He earned a spot on the practice squad in his first year, then a spot on the team in his second. He was a starter his third year and was selected for the Pro Bowl the next year.

"First, mentally, he had the ability to not be intimidated or feel pressure by the opponent or the situation," Pecora says. "Second, physically, he was as strong a human being as I have ever met. Third, he was the most coachable person I have ever been around."

Haselrig struggled with drug and alcohol problems near the end of his NFL career. He has since recovered, and now is passing on the skills that launched his career, serving as an assistant coach for wrestling and football at his alma mater, Greater Johnstown High School.

NCAA

FROM THE DESK OF NCAA PRESIDENT
MARK EMMERT

Welcome to the 2018 winter championships. Whatever the sport, a championship is often viewed as the final test for a college athlete, reached through determination and intense preparation. But in college athletics, the stakes are much more than a single victory. While we are proud of achievements on fields and courts, we also celebrate the pathway to opportunity that college sports provides for nearly half a million student-athletes.

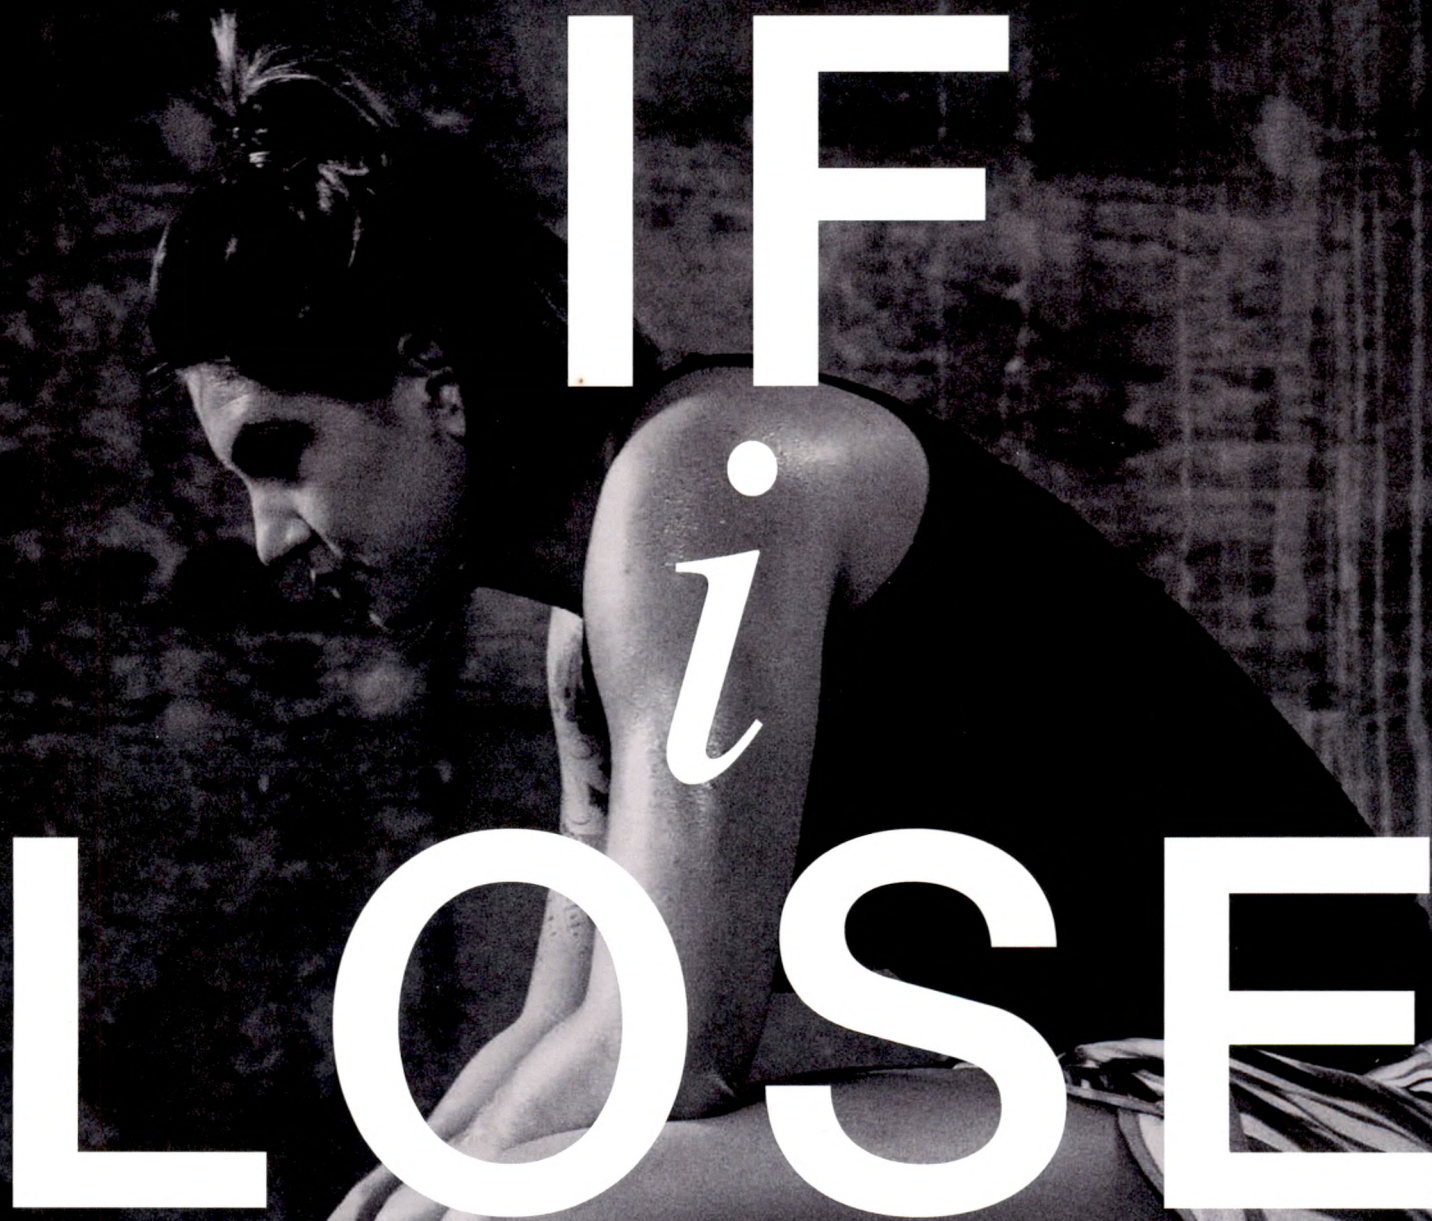

College athletics is more than a game, a tournament or a season. It is an experience from which these young men and women will grow and succeed throughout the rest of their lives. As an association, we have worked hard, together, to improve opportunities for student-athletes over the last five years. And we are not done. We're working hard to ensure we create as many opportunities as possible for college athletes. For the vast majority, that equals a college degree and a professional career in something other than sports. It also means that in everything we do, we remain focused on academics, protecting the well-being of student-athletes and promoting fairness.

This championship season, we celebrate what is best about college sports and recognize students for their achievements in and outside of competition. And, most importantly, we applaud these students not only for the wins today, but for what follows in their lives. Enjoy the championship.

College athletics is more than a game, a tournament or a season.

It is an experience from which these young men and women will grow and succeed throughout the rest of their lives.

IF i LOSE

I'LL RESPOND WITH RESPECT.

Don't undo my hard work with poor sportsmanship.

RESPECT.
It's the name of the game.

CHAMPIONS IN COMPETITION. CHAMPIONS IN LIFE.

What made them great student-athletes makes them great employees

Every day, millions of former student-athletes from 1,100 NCAA schools prove the value of college sports, using what they learned in the classroom and on the field.

Former college athletes excel as leaders in all walks of life, across diverse professions throughout the global workforce. Celebrating this remarkable community, NCAA After the Game highlights the success these former student-athletes are having in post-collegiate careers and showcases how their experiences in college played a significant role in those achievements.

And to help them win in their biggest game of all — life — NCAA After the Game provides professional networking opportunities through a career center tailored for former student-athletes.
